

An aerial photograph of a building complex, likely a university campus. A path is highlighted in red and yellow, starting from a large building on the left, moving right, then down, then right again, and finally down to a large building at the bottom right. The path is composed of several straight segments connected by right-angle turns. The buildings are mostly rectangular and arranged in a grid-like fashion. The surrounding area is green, indicating grass or trees.

